FREIGHT CLEANED UP t Local Yard of Central Vermont Railroad-Four Freight Trains Go Through City.

Agent Hency W. McMahon of the local office of the Central Vermont railroad stated Tuesday that so far as the local yard was concerned the freight had all been cleaned up and things were moving smoothly. He said that the passenger trains were all running on schedule time and that during the day four freights had passed through the city, two through ones going north and a local north

NOANK Burglars Enter Three Houses During

Money—Lighter Launched.

Three houses were entered in the village some time during Monday night by burglars, who were not very well paid for their trouble. The places entered were the houses of John Daboll in Pearl street William Johnson in Potter court and Giles Latham in Main itreet.

At John Dabout.

At John Daboli's an open window was used to reach through and remove a burnt-wood handkerchief box from a bureau. This was the only thing that was molested. On the bureau with the box there was a gold watch, several rings and a gold locket. It is thought they did not go inside this house as they could easily have reached in and removed what they did while standing outside.

It is thought that the burglars were scared away from Giles Latham's, as about 1.30 Tuesday morning some noise awoke Silas Weaver, who some noise awoke Silas Weaver, who cat was making the noise, got up to put it out. When he got into the put it out. When he got into the dining room the screen was removed from an open window, and upon in-vestigation it was found that a settee had been drawn up under the window. Nothing was disturbed in this house.

At William Johnson's entrance was made through an open window. Here the bedrooms of Mr. Johnson and Maor D. Mortimer Lee were visited and lothes taken from each. In Mr. John on's clothes there was about $5 in money, a gold watch valued at $100 and a locket were taken from the bureau. There was about $9 in the pocket of Major Lee's clothes, so that the intruders were not very well paid for any of their visits, although in two of the houses there were large sums of money which were not touched. This new happening has started the people on the patrolman question again and it is thought that some means of protection of property could had by the residents
